LUMBER TRADE GOOD

BENTLEY-SCHOENEMAN COMPANY FINDS BUSINESS INCREASING STEADILY.

Little more than a year and a half ago the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Company bought out the Valley Lumber Company and began business in Glendale at 1022 W. Broadway. Today the company has a nicely appointed office fronting on Broadway and a well-kept and busy yard in the rear, with every equipment that facilitates the cutting, dressing and delivery of lumber.

Mr. George H. Bentley, who is in charge of the business, is a young man of considerable experience and good business judgment. He is practically the sole manager of the business. Mr. Schoeneman, the other partner, resides in Long Beach. He has several lumber yards in the Eastern States. The firm is prosperous and finds its business increasing steadily, as its monthly reports show.

"Business," said Mr. Bentley to a representative of The Glendale Evening News, "is a great deal better than anyone would imagine, hearing so much talk of bad times on every side. Naturally, we judge from our own business, which is quite active. If we are active it is because there is building going on. I share in the opinion which most of the Glendale builders hold that business is on the high road to a comple revival. That revival should be all the more stable because it is coming on bit by bit and not with a rush. In Glendale business has never been so bad as it has been elsewhere. I believe that property here was never pushed to an extremity of high prices, and consequently it is now standing about normal and nobody is suffering from a drop in inflated prices.

"During all these dull times elsewhere, while there has been a certain falling off in the building business in Glendale, there has yet been a constant stream of building that has kept things going. At present there is a great deal of building in sight. Some of that building will be business property and some residence property.

"Naturally it all looks good to us. When building is active this firm is active also, and it pleases us to know that this increase in building is a matter of steady growth and not mere speculation.

"This firm handles every kind of lumber and can furnish everything in that way for any kind of building from foundation to roof. Inside and outside; ceiling, flooring, wainscoting and roofing, doors and window sashes—everything is here. You can see that our assortment of lumber is large and varied. Here is redwood, which is in great demand in building wherever lumber has to go into the ground or next to the ground, on account of its imperishable qualities. This wood also makes a fine interior finish. It is in increasing demand for that kind of work.

"Here, too, is sugar pine, Oregon pine, white oak and maple for flooring, and many other kinds, which we always keep on hand. Here is lumber in every dimension, well seasoned and in perfect condition. However, as this firm does a very large trade in La Crescenta and La Canada valleys, where population is increasing rapidly and building is always going on, we have set up another lumber yard at Montrose, whence it is easy to fill the many orders from the two valleys. Our Montrose yard is at the corner of Montrose and Honolulu avenues. It is of considerable size and enables us to serve the people of the valleys more promptly and also to be in closer touch with them. Our manager at Montrose is Mr. H. M. Beckman.

"Two auto trucks make our deliveries, and I can assure you that they are kept busy at present We deliver lumber at once to any part of the city or of the vicinity.

"In addition to supplying our customers with lumber according to their needs we are ready to help them plan their houses. This firm is a member of the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association, which furnishes it with its bungalow book system. This book was published at a cost of $15,000. We furnish prospective builders with blue prints and specifications for any style of house or bungalow and also recommend competent carpenters.

"I look to see business in Glendale improve every day from now on, and I feel certain that the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Company will expand with that expanding volume of trade. It is almost certain that the fall business will be active and our large installation of planers, jointers, surfacers and saws of every description will be singing merrily all the coming months."

LIBRARY HOUR ENDS

SUMMER INSTRUCTION FOR CHILDREN IN USE OF BOOKS CLOSED FOR THE SEASON

It was with much youthful regret that the children who have been attending the Wednesday morning instruction classes at the public library, under the guidance of Mrs. Danford, understood that those delightful sessions had come to an end. The last of the lectures was given on Wednesday and it was well attended. Mrs. J. E. Henderson, who has all along taken an interest in the work that Mrs. Danford has been doing, was present and assisted the librarian in the program of the morning by giving a series of delightful readings, including the favorite "Golden Locks."

Miss Wright also aided in making the morning's entertainment a very pleasant affair by giving a series of readings, one of which was the charming "Story of the Three Bears." It is needless to say that the children were delighted with the stories. They listened to the program with a deep attention that showed how much they had profited by the training and discipline of the class.

In the beginning of these library hours the children exhibited that restlessness and lack of attention that might have been expected from those who had just completed a long and wearisome school session and were longing for a real outside vacation; but as Mrs. Danford's teaching became plain to them they began to take a lively and absorbing interest in the lectures and to give as much attention as the most earnest adult could be expected to give.

After the first part of the morning's entertainment was over Mrs. Danford gave a very excellent lecture on reference work and school work. Her lecture was a recapitulation of the work done throughout the past two months and emphasized the most important points in book lore and use of the catalogue.

"I believe that the work of the library class has done much to aid the children to make an intelligent use of the library," said Mrs. Danford to a representative of The Glendale Evening News. The instruction given has been showing its effects in the reading of the children. They have followed up the lectures by a free consultation of the books in the library on the subjects discussed and it is evident that the lecturers have left a lasting impression on most of them.

"Before attending these classes many of the children were incapable of making an intelligent use of the catalogue. Now you may see at any time the members of the class looking up books for themselves and selecting their reading matter with considerable discretion. Before the close of the class I made an appeal to the children to continue the work and to be sure to return to the class when it should be reopened next summer. They responded enthusiastically. In every way I have enjoyed these summer Wednesday morning classes. They have brought the children to understand that the librarian takes a personal and kindly interest in each of them."

RECITAL AT SANITARIUM.

One of the most pleasing musical entertainments ever heard at the Glendale Sanitarium was given Thursday night, by Miss Susine Wesels, violinist, and Mrs. John R. Barrows, pianist. Miss Wesels, who has made a very excellent reputation for herself in Glendale as a violinist of great taste and feeling, excelled herself in all her numbers. Mrs. Barrows needs no introduction to the people of Glendale. As an accompanist or soloist on the piano she has made for herself an enduring reputation. In the exacting program of Thursday evening she exhibited a precision of execution and a mastery of technique that elicited much appreciative applause from the critical audience.

The large hall of the sanitarium was filled with delightful people, who showed their sense of the musical value of the entertainment by frequent applause. Following is the program:

Violin solo, Sonata .....(Corelli)
Piano solo, "Vogel als Prophet..... .....(Schumann)

TO PROTECT BIRDS.

With the approach of the open season for shooting wild fowl, the United States Department of Agriculture is warning sportsmen that the Federal regulations as amended October 1, 1914, will be strictly enforced.

The department will consider any recommendations submitted in good faith for amendment of the regulations, but will hold no public hearings thereon, nor will it amend the regulations prior to October 18, 1915. It is the purpose of the department to conform the regulations to the wishes of the majority of sportsmen, so far as it can be done and at the same time give wild fowl the necessary protection.

Federal regulations divide the United States into two zones. Zone No. 1, the breeding zone, includes the States of Oregon, Idaho, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and all States north of them. Zone No. 2, the wintering zone, includes all States south of those named.

Information as to the seasons during which migratory birds may be hunted can be secured from the State game warden or from the Biological Survey, Washington.

GIRLS' STUNT PARTY

What is likely to prove one of the most interesting parties of the new season is that which is being arranged by the girls' class of 1916 of the Union High Schol. This is a "Stunt Party." It is entirely a girls' affair and no boys will be admitted. The stunt party is an annual function which invariably turns out to be a highly enjoyable and novel entertainment. The social doings of the school year are always opened in this charming and original fashion. The young ladies will appear in fancy costumes. Prizes will be given for the best costumes. Each class will be expected to provide a stunt and there will be a prize for the best class stunt. This pleasant social gathering will be held in the Masonic Temple, Friday, Sept. 10. The grand march will begin at 8 p. m. There will be dancing and games. Freshmen girls are specially invited. They will find this an excellent opportunity to get acquainted.

FIRE IN SMALL SHED

Volumes of smoke rising above the city in a westerly direction Thursday forenoon gave the impression that a serious fire had started. When the fire department arrived on the scene, 1473 W. Third street, however, it was found that the whole of the smoke was coming from a small shed 8x8 feet, which had caught fire in some mysterious manner. The shed belonged to the property occupied by Mr. Harry Neel. The fire department, represented by Supt. Langford, Chief of Police Herald, Roy Pittman and O. W. Tarr, was promptly on the scene and extinguished the blaze.

THE LAST DAY

NOW IS THE TIME FOR GLENDALE PEOPLE TO FULFILL PROMISE

At the opening of the Evening News and Tri-City Progress subscription contest, June 14, it seemed that September 4, the date of closing the contest, was a long time ahead, but time soon passes, and now the contestants are preparing for the last day's battle.

Many promises were made at the opening of the contest to be made good near the close, and now the closing time has come, so the promise will be fulfilled before 9 o'clock tomorrow evening. There will be candidates who will lack only a few thousand votes of winning one of the best prizes, and then friends of these contestants will say if you had only told me your success depended on so few votes I would have gladly helped you out. Now is the time for friends to do their helping and not after the contest has closed. Now is the time to do the work that will win one of the best prizes. Call your friends together and ask them to organize for tomorrow's work. The world admires a winner. If it is possible to win in a subscription contest, it is posible to win greater battles. It is well to cultivate the winning habit. Every time a man wins his confidence in self is strengthened, and every time a man loses his confidence in self is weakened.

The management of the Evening News is conducting the contest himself. Every contestant will be given a square deal. The prizes will be awarded immediately after the judges finish counting the ballots Saturday night—probably not later than 10:30 o'clock. The contestant having the highest number of votes will have first choice of the prizes offered. The candidate having next to the greatest number of votes will have second choice, and so on down to the candidate having the least number of votes.

The prizes are:

Five-pasenger Maxwell touring car.
Schiller piano.

Trip to San Francisco or $75 in cash.

Fifty-dollar certificate of deposit in the First National Bank of Glendale.

(a) $75 Scholarship in the Isaac-Woodbury Business College, Los Angeles.

(b) $75 Scholarship, etc.

(c) $75 Scholarship, etc.

The candidates are:

Mrs. A. D. Pearce.
Mrs. J. C. May.
Miss Ruth Wright.
Morse Preeman.
Newton McGillis.
Miss Virginia Graham.
Miss Cora Hickman.

The gentlemen who have consented to serve as judges are:

J. Herbert Smith of the Tropico Mercantile Co.

B. F. Andrae, bookkeeper in the Logan store, Casa Verdugo.

Geo. U. Moyse, superintendent Glendale Union High School.

Herman Nelson, cashier of the Bank of Glendale.

G. H. Bentley of the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Co., Glendale.

RECEPTION AT CHURCH.

In honor of the return of the Rev. E. H. Willisford, Mrs. Willisford and their family from a month's vacation, at Switzer's camp, in the hills above Pasadena, the members of the Congregational church gave a most delightful reception last night. The church was tastefully adorned in pink and green. There were many pleasant meetings and greetings among the members, a number of whom have been scattered during the vacation season.

Miss Calla Porter, president of the Woman's Auxiliary, was chairman of the committee of arrangements. She was assisted by Mrs. Eleanor Miller, Mrs. Brace, Mrs. Goodridge, Mrs. Miner and Mrs. Patterson.

A charming program was given as follows: Piano solo, Miss Patterson; reading, Miss Marcella Miller; duet, Mrs. Coral Harrison Sloan and Miss Lillian Mason; reading, Mrs. Sloan, assisted on piano and violin by Miss Marion Law and Miss Frances Peckham. Miss Lilian Mason then gave a piano solo.

Dr. Willisford was called upon to give a talk on his vacation experiences, which he did in a humorous and entertaining manner. Dainty refreshments were served and a pleasant social time enjoyed.

TRIUMPH OF AMERICAN PRINCIPLE.

President Wilson's triumph in diplomacy is a wonderful tribute to the American principles in which the President was reared. The maintenance and defense of those principles has characterized the President's conduct of affairs during all his term of office. It has been no easy task that the President of the United States has had laid on his shoulders and the double duty of preserving American neutrality both in Mexico and in Europe has strained his powers to the limit.

President Wilson and the American principle that American life shall be sacred, war or no war, has triumphed. It has triumphed, also, without any application of force; simply by the exertion of strong moral suasion with the uncompromising determination that the principles of this country would be maintained at all hazards.

President Wilson has managed to maintain a middle course between the fatuous policy that would submit to any injury or insult for the sake of a peace that could never be maintained, and the jingo program that seeks war at any price. It remains to be seen how faithfully Germany will live up to the promises made to the President through Ambassador Von Bernstorff. It is hinted that they may stretch the point against vessels that may be supposed to have resisted capture or attempted to evade it by flight and sink them, leaving the explanation to come as it may.

There may be no realization of such fears; but there is danger that they may be realized. In that case the last state of neutral nations at sea may be worse than the first and merchant sailors under the American flag or other flags may still remain exposed to all the perils of submarine piracy.

However that may be President Wilson's wonderful persistence in his plan of campaign against German interference with American freedom of the seas has won a well-deserved victory. The United States has given powerful evidence of the moral force it exercises in the affairs of the world. It may not be worth inquiring whether or not Germany made a virtue of necessity, because the British are now able to deal with the submarine menace and have it well in hand.

Whatever motives may have influenced the German government to modify its submarine policy there is strong evidence of its desire to satisfy American sentiment and that sentiment has therefore triumphed. President Wilson has secured his aim, which was to protect the lives and property of Americans at sea. He has accomplished this in a dignified and truly American manner, without truckling to anyone, without bullying anyone, and without giving up one jot of the policy he enunciated in his first communication to the German government concerning the Lusitania case.

This policy, which has come out thus successfully, has placed the United States at the very front of the nations. It has made President Wilson the most-talked-of man in Europe at the present moment, and it will give this country a prestige when peace comes to be discussed that will enable it to raise its voice effectively in the grave discussions that must arise over future international relations after the war comes to an end.

GENERAL BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

That there is even now a revival of business throughout the country is a matter of congratulatory comment in many of the leading papers of the land. Throughout the east and middle west there is much satisfaction expressed because of the activity in the steel industry. This industry employs practically a million men, and it can easily be seen that this involves an endless chain in the receipt and expenditure of the money earned in this domain alone.

Charles M. Schwab, the head of the Steel industry, said the other day that there would be certainly two years of the great industrial boom that is at present visible in certain sections of the country that must inevitably affect favorably the whole land. Thomas Edison is generally a very conservative prophet. He sees seven years' prosperity ahead.

While the American steel worker has thus had his purchasing capacity more than doubled there has ben a similar enhancement of the American farmer's purchasing powers. This should stimulate the consumptive powers of the country as a whole.

Credit is sound everywhere; there is plenty of money and more of it is being made available every day for legitimate transactions. Gains in railroad earnings are very large. The gross earnings of the most important systems are growing daily. This shows better traffic and travel conditions. The Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific show a very great increase, stimulated doubtless by the travel to the expositions on the Pacific Coast.

The crops throughout the land are very large and of excellent quality and should mean large profits to the agricultural population. Now that American relations with Germany are less tense and that there is reason to look for an early settlement of the Mexican difficulty there should speedily come a time when this land should reap largely the crop of goodwill and peace that it has sown. That harvest is likely to show itself in increased foreign trade when the war is over.

To crown all, this country has a large balance of trade in its favor, and holds an immense stock of the world's gold reserve in its vaults. It is in a position to dictate almost any commercial policy it may choose and should find itself at the close of the war the premier country of the world.

Los Angeles has 46,000 automobiles. Anyone who indulges in that fine gymnastic exercise, that demands the use of high brain as well as muscle power, crossing the streets of that city, that has grown like Jonah's gourd, in a night, would think it had 400,000. There was a woeful lack of foresight on the part of the people who laid out the city at first. They may not have lacked faith in their city's growth; but they certainly lacked foresight when they built those narrow streets that almost rival the historical "Needle's Eye" of some cities of Asiatic fame. It is now recommended that a traffic court be established in Los Angeles in order to deal specially with cases arising out of atuomobile travel. That is a good move. The next best thing to do is cut down the hills and give greater access and outlet to the vast volume of commerce and travel that pours in and out of that wonderful, growing city.

TROPICO

The members of the You and I club and a coterie of their friends were entertained with a delightful musicale at the home of Miss Melicent Verden on Mira Loma avenue, Thursday evening. This social event had long been keenly anticipated by not only the members of this exclusive social club, but by their friends. Miss Melicent Virden, who is a most accomplished pianiste, gave a number of her best classical selections, in such a charming manner that her interested audience was loathe to accord an audible applause, preferring that the sweet notes of the finale fade away as a happy benediction, for each one seemed in happy accord with the gifted musician and the soul stirring notes she brought to them. Yet custom demanded a most generous applause.

Mrs. Wayland Brown, a clever artist, whose readings and monologues are always so pleasing, delighted all with several of her best selections. The generous applause accorded Mrs. Brown was none the greater than that which greeted Mrs. Charles Stewart in her well rendered vocal numbers. Mrs. Stewart will be remembered as Miss Julia Byloff, who always delighted her audience with her sweet clear soprano notes.

Miss Virden was assisted in the entertainment of the club and their guests by her mother, Mrs. E. Virden, and sisters, Miss Rose and Miss Edwina Virden and Mrs. Claire T. Van Etten.

Vincent R. Sterling left for San Francisco Wednesday evening, from which port he will sail for Tsing Tan, China, Saturday to remain two years. Mr. Sterling returned early in the spring from the Philippines, where he spent the past nine years as civil engineer, and has enjoyed a pleasant visit with his mother and brother, Mrs. Kizzie Sterling and Mr. Reynolds Sterling of West Tropico avenue. Mr. Sterling will resume his profession when he arrives in China.

Mrs. Wayland Brown in her usual happy and gracious manner gave a delightful program at the noon hour at the Lewistein manufacturing establishment in Los Angeles. This interesting hour was given under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wallace Kimberly of San Fernando boulevard, with Mr. and Mrs. Otot P. Snyder of Brand boulevard, as their guests, motored to Clifton-by-the-Sea Monday evening, where they joined a merry party of Los Angeles friends in a beefsteak fry and a corn roast.

An extra meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held this evening at the city hall at 8 o'clock. The public is invited to hear the report of the committee regarding the locating of Wood Manufacturing company here in Tropico. The manufacturing enterprise represents $300,000 capital.

Miss Agnes McKee of Los Angeles has been spending the past week visiting Mrs. Kizzie Sterling of West Tropico avenue.

High up among the fragrant pines that surround Camp Baldy, thus making it such a delightful mountain resort, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Fryer of Gardena avenue are enjoying a pleasant vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hornung of Gardena avenue are spending a most delightful week at Balboa beach.

Reynolds Sterling has returned from a delightful ten days' visit in San Francisco, where he enjoyed the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The common people are immensely in the majority. Wars will cease when the common people refuse to fight, not before. That is all there is to it.

It is almost as illogical to sell eggs by the dozen as it would be to sell potatoes in that way.

Do not say "common" sense. Sense is uncommon.

DEVELOPING WATER

A novel method of developing mountain gravity water is being undertaken by Thomas Paton, contractor, who has agreed to add from 5 to 20 miner's inches to the Norumbega Heights tract water supply by digging an underground tunnel parallel with the course of the stream in Spanish canyon, with a crosscut from one side of the canyon's rim rock to the other. This crosscut will be enlarged to form a subterranean reservoir, which will be tapped through the tunnel. It is believed the plan will develop a substantial addition to the water supply.

BUILDING NEW BRIDGE

To make impossible the tying up of the Santa Ana this winter by flood damage, the company engineers are building a new cement and steel bridge across Santa Anita wash, in the southwest edge of this city. The track is being raised five feet to accommodate the added headway provided by the new structure, which will be rushed to completion before the beginning of the winter rains. In the big storms of two years ago the Santa Fe was washed out at Santa Anita, on the west, and Sawpit Wash, on the east of the city.

Candied Apples

Candied apples are great. They are not a bit hard to fix, either. Just take two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of molasses, one tablespoonful of vinegar and one teaspoonful of butter. Boil the mixture in a saucepan for about twenty minutes—or until it hardens when dropped in cold water. When you take it off the fire stir in one-quarter teaspoonful of baking powder and one teaspoonful vanilla. Have eight apples ready on eight sharp sticks, and then dip each apple once in the mixture. Stand the apples in a butered pan—not touching each other—to cool.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ELEONORA OF BULGARIA EXPRESSES APPRECIATION OF UNITED STATES

Quen Eleonora of Bulgaria is anxious to see the United States. At least she so expressed herself to the correspondent of the United Press, Henry Wood. For years she has spent much of her time in the hospitals of Europe and served for fourteen months at the head of the Russian Imperial Ambulance in Man churia during the war with Japan. She worked also in the hospitals of her own country during the war with Turkey, and was even under fire at the front.

"Here in Bulgaria we are now solving the problem in the manner in which our experience has taught us it can best be met. This is by the establishment of training schools for nurses and the organizing of auxiliary societies to the Red Cross. Why, indeed, should not every woman in the world have an adequate training for this service? Is it not a duty that woman owes to the state just as much as the military service that is rendered by the man? But if it is asking too much that all women should be prepared for this work, there are thousands at least of young women in every country who can well undertake it. For these, all of the strictness and requirements of the Red Cross service are perhaps too much, but there is nothing to hinder a preparation that will enable them to contribute their full share towards the alleviation of the horrors of war should the moment ever come when their services may be needed."

MIRROR TO WARN AUTOISTS

Flashing a clear reflection of one of the most dangerous curves in Western Pennsylvania, a plate-glass mirror, 30 by 48 inches, has been placed at the top of the Lofan's Ferry hill by the new Kensington Automobile Club near Pittsburg. The mirror is firmly set in a heavy wooden frame and is mounted so that automobile drivers may see the curve they are approaching for a distance of fully 400 feet, thus giving them ample warning of an approaching car. Drivers say the reflection of the headlights at night make the mirror of even greater value than during the daytime.

HOW DOGS SMELL

The dog's keen sense of smell is of great service to him and his master. In addition to the olfactory or smelling nerves which have their termini inside the dog's nostrils the entire area of the black membrane around his nose is very sensitive. This sensitiveness is acute, however, only when the membrane is moist, and it is nature's provision for keeping it so that makes the dog's nose always cold and clammy.

KEEPS US HUSTLING

This is a busy world, and those who would succeed in it must hustle. It pays out big sums of money and it is by continual nagging small sums are collected. The man who buys wants a bargain and the man who sells wants a high price. We are in the midst of two extremes, and thus the battle for existence goes on, and thus it will ever be.

Silver Dollar Made of Corn

An interesting feature of the Iowa exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition is a representation of a silver dollar made of corn, true to the original in form and color, but four feet in diameter. It stands on a pedestal also made of corn, on which a farm scene is represented. A quarter of a million grains of corn were used in constructing it. The small ends of the grains were then glued to a wooden frame-work on which the outlines of the dollar had been drawn. Cornmeal was used for filling the spaces between the grains.

Testing Solder

Before using solder it is a good thing to test it in order to find out whether or not it is of good quality. To do this hold it near the ear and bend it back and forth. In doing this if it makes a crackling noise it is an indication that it is good solder; if it does not, it shows that there is too much lead and not enough tin in it.

The Listener

Years ago some one said that "a good listener is preferred to a poor talker." And every one who has observed good listeners or listened to poor talkers have come to the conclusion that the fellow knew what he was saying.

There is quite as much art in listening as there is in talking. Simply to remain quiet does not signify that one is listening. To listen means to pay attention. It implies that one is learning something. It is in line with the words of the wag concerning the owl, which runs something like this:

A wise old owl lived in an oak,
The more he heard the less he spoke;
The less he spoke the more he heard.
Why are we not like that wise old bird?

OLDTIME HANDWORK HAS CAPTURED FANCY OF MODERN FEMININE WORLD

The newest bee in milady's bonnet is a mighty old one—the quilting bee, if you please. At least a perfect passion for this old-time handwork is sweeping over the modern hearth and now no home is complete without a bit of handsome quilting. Smocking has been laid aside and patching has become a fine art.

Several of the smart specialty shops in Fifth avenue are showing some delightfully artistic and wondrously attractive things in the quilting line. There are first of all the large bed quilts done on unbleached linen with appliqued designs of old-fashioned hollyhocks in lovely rose pinks and greens and the whole quilt bound in an inch-wide binding of green. Then there is the morning glory design in shades of blue and lavender. The hollyhock design and colors are perhaps the most effective and there are slip covers for chairs, table covers and even curtains in the same patterns, the latter appliqued on a single thickness of the muslin and quilted only in the sense of the patchwork design being stitched on by hand.

There are even tea napkins with tiny patches of red and green cloth set on in one corner like a cluster of two cherries with a binding of the red around the whole. In a set of these napkins there are only two of like coloring in the dozen, some of the cherries being wildly futuristic in gorgeous yellow, bright purples and gay blues and all combined with green for leaves. Stunning quilted pillows there are, their elaborately quilted cream colored backgrounds brightened with intricate patchwork designs of filled baskets of fruit or flowers, sprays of varicolored grapes and hollyhock designs and morning glory wreaths of the bed spreads.

As the prices of the fascinating finished articles are as high as their coloring it is indeed a boon to the woman who has more taste than cash that the tea napkin, pillows and the smaller pieces come with the material all cut and the designs basted on ready to be neatly stitched and quilted at home or at the sewing club for exactly half prices.

Aside from cunning aprons made on heavy linen like the tea napkins the quilting fad hasn't struck lovely women in any more personal spot than her household furnishings as yet, but it will no doubt be but a question of time when her ingenuity will turn this quaint art to good sartorial account. Especially for the kiddies are its possibilities manifold in the form of gay little jumpers, aprons and cunning washable bonnets and hats. The crib sets including the little bed spread and the quilted side protectors are adorable and for the wee folk the floral designs vary with charming but often unclassified fauna, cute cubist ducks and doggies and bunnies pink, blue and green, defying in the snug security of their carefully quilted stitching the inquisite prying of infantile fingers.

It seems almost mean to mention the fact that people dying of heat in New York doubtless held the opinion that California was too warm a place to be visited in summer.

WEATHER FORECASTS

The knowledge of what the weather is likely to be for the coming two or three days can be turned to good account by men in almost every line of business. The interest of the seaman and the farmer in the weather is apparent, but there are less obvious ways in which scientific forecasts can be utilized in the economical management of business.

Railroad companies now make a practice of studying the weather predictions before sending perishable products on the way to market. If unfavorable temperature conditions are predicted, such shipments are frequently accelerated, or if it is not believed that they can reach their destination in time, protection is found for them en route or they are held until the anticipated storm or cold wave has passed. When a period of protracted cold is predicted, companies sometimes refuse to receive consignments of goods which are likely to be injured on this account.

An excellent example of this is the shipment of bananas. At a temperature below 55 degrees this fruit deteriorates in quality and a temperature of more than 65 degrees causes it to ripen too rapidly. In order to deliver shipments of bananas in good condition at a market at some distance from the shipping point it is necessary, therefore, to obtain all possible information in regard to the conditions which the shipment is likely to encounter on the road.

When great heat is anticipated, also, extra quantities of ice are in the refrigerating cars. In this way vegetables, fruits, eggs, fish, oysters, etc., may be shipped in safety under conditions which would have been severe enough to ruin them had they not been foreseen and measures taken to protect the products.

To the trucker or fruit grower frosts and cold-wave warnings are invaluable, enabling him to protect, by smudging, irrigation, and other methods, the young vegetables and fruits. Many crops, such as beans and grapes, are saved by being picked in advance of the predicted freeze, while tobacco and immature corn can be cut as soon as the notice of impending danger is received. In the sugar districts of Louisiana, for example, great savings are frequently effected by cutting and windrowing sugar cane at once when warning of an approaching cold wave is sent out by the Weather Bureau. The temperature forecasts of the bureau are also used by sheepmen at lambing and shearing time, and by farmers in determining the time for hog killing. The collection and boiling of maple sap is also more or less dependent upon weather conditions, and the spring forecasts, therefore, are carefully studied in the maple-sugar sections. To the farmer, the question of rain is as important as the question of high or low temperature. One example of the way in which the weather forecasts can be used by everyone is recorded in a post card to the Weather Bureau, reading:

"Your bulletin predicting rain today was received at 1 p. m. yesterday. I put men and teams into the field and got in all the hay which would have been spoiled by the rain."

There is, of course, nothing new in farmers trying to get in their hay before the rain comes. The Government forecasts, however, are a much more reliable means of knowing when rain is to come than any of the signs upon which the weather-wise depend. These forecasts are based upon observations taken twice a day at about 200 principal stations scattered over the entire country and, before the outbreak of the war, upon reports from the entire Northern Hemisphere. Conditions over the entire country at a given time are thus known to the forecasters in Washington, and from these conditions it is possible to predict on scientific principles—not to guess—what are the probabilities for the immediate future. The forecasts of the Weather Bureau have been tested by a record of actual conditions, and from this record it appears that approximately nine times out of ten the forecasts are correct. This does not mean, of course, that when rain is predicted on Tuesday for a certain State that there will be rain on Tuesday in every township in that State, but it does mean that there will be an appreciable amount of rainfall on that day over a large part of that State.

The California raisin crop affords another interesting example of the value of these predictions. The raisin crop is extremely susceptible while drying to injury from rain, but if the coming of rain is known a sufficient length of time in advance producers may protect the raisins by stacking and covering the trays. In recent years raisin growers have been able to obtain this information so successfully that loss from rain has been practically eliminated. In much the same way in other large fruit-growing districts picking is now done in advance of rain so that the fruit can be shipped dry and, therefore, in much better condition to stand travel. This is also true of vegetables which should be dug in dry weather. Alfalfa, too, can be baled in the field when dry, but will spoil if baled wet, and a heavy fall of rain upon the crop immediately after cutting ruins its commercial value for seeding.

In the cities the weather predictions enable the ordinary life of the inhabitants to be carried on with a minimum of interruption by unfavorable weather conditions. For example, the managers of large central heating and lighting plants know that a cold wave will mean an increased demand upon the power generated in these plants. When cold weather is forecasted, therefore, they proceed at once to prepare themselves for it. In the same way the city authorities protect fire plugs and exposed mains, and street railway companies arrange for more heat in their cars. In sections where natural gas is used provision is also made to meet the increased consumption which is sure to accompany cold weather. Even the retail merchants are directly interested in the weather conditions, for there is less shopping in cold, stormy weather and they make their plans accordingly. There is, in short, practically no business which is not benefited by being able to anticipate with reasonable accuracy changes in the weather conditions.

POOR CLOVER SEED

Specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture who have been investigating the supply of crimson clover seed report there is apparently a larger supply than in any previous year, but that much of the seed is of poor quality. France and Austria normally supply the greater part of this seed used in the United States. In view of a threatened shortage owing to disturbance of the import trade, seed men, during the year ending June 30, 1915, secured as much seed as they could with the result that 12,000,000 pounds were imported from France as compared with 7,500,000 pounds the year previous. Much seed of poor quality was imported during May and June. Tests with several lots amounting to 1,000,000 pounds showed germination of only 29 per cent to 62 per cent. Farmers, therefore, should make sure of the quality of the seed they buy. Crimson clover seed of a bright greenish yellow color usually germinate well, while a brownish color usually indicates poor germination. Lots containing brown seed should especially be tested for germination.

Automobile accidents have become a daily feature in the papers. The total ofr a year in this country must be appalling.
